

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A computer can be provided with small-sized, light-weight, and furthermore cableless features by efficiently positioning the components of the computer and display device. The computer system includes a wearable computer and a wearable display device provided independently of this computer. A display controller is installed in the display device, not in the computer. The computer controls the display controller by radio or wire.

5

10

2012 RELEASE UNDER E.O. 14176